Family History Research: A Guide for Nebraska Librarians

07:30 PM - 08:30 PM CST

Family History Research: A Guide for Nebraska Librarians

Presenter: Marcia Stewart

The Great Plains Chapter recently presented a program at the annual Nebraska Library Association Conference that was received with much enthusiasm; local library personnel are clearly eager to know more about genealogy research, and how they can better answer their patrons' questions. We are sharing this presentation as something that other chapters might like to emulate after adjusting it to their own locales.

Description: Interest in family history continues to grow, and librarians are often called upon to assist patrons in learning more about their roots. This session will enable library staff, regardless of budget or experience in genealogical research, to help family-history researchers avail themselves of the many free resources for discovering local, national and international records.

This presentation is open to all members. To register go to <https://zoom.us/meeting/register/FMPt7JGCT96-KqGkbd8N6g>

Second Tuesday: Reconstructing the Identity of a Career Criminal

12:00 PM - 01:00 PM EST

A Man Without a Name: Reconstructing the Identity of a Career Criminal

We sometimes encounter individuals who exist only in fragments -- men and women who moved through the record set under multiple aliases, leaving behind no stable identity, no clear origins, and no documented parentage. This presentation offers a case study of one such individual: a career criminal whose paper trail spans years, jurisdictions, and multiple identities. Through careful correlation of disparate records, this project reconstructs a probable identity and demonstrates strategies for working with fragmented and misleading evidence.

Jeanie Watts has conducted family history research since 1985 and has worked professionally since 2020. She is a board member and the historian for the Pilgrim Edward Doty Society and serves as an administrator for the Doty/Doughty Y-DNA Project at FamilyTreeDNA. Known for following complex research trails and uncovering overlooked connections, she brings a persistence well suited to challenging identity problems. Jeanie was raised in northwest Ohio, lived in western Maryland for more than two decades, and recently relocated to Louisiana. She is the mother of six and grandmother of four.

Open to all APG members.

Rhonda Lauritzen: Conquering Resistance, Procrastination, and Imposter Syndrome

03:00 PM - 04:00 PM EST

Feelings of insecurity and self-doubt can stall progress and fuel procrastination, but fresh research shows they can also be reframed as strengths. This session explores productive failure, humility as a professional advantage, and the idea that insecurity can serve as a useful alert to risk rather than a signal to stop. One part inspiration and one part practical strategy, you will leave with a few powerful habits to overcome procrastination, navigate uncertainty, and bring more steady inspiration into your work.

Luis Ariel Rivera: Not American Enough: The Challenges and Beauty of Puerto-Rican Genealogy

03:00 PM - 04:00 PM EST

Puerto Ricans have been American citizens for more than a century, yet their records and history are often overlooked or misunderstood in genealogical research. This session explores the rewards and challenges of tracing Puerto Rican ancestors, from American-created records beginning in 1910 to rich Spanish-era sources that support thorough, standards-based work, along with the many online and on-island collections that illuminate earlier generations. A personal case study, grounded in traditional records and DNA, demonstrates how Puerto Rico's unique political status shapes both identity and the research process, while offering practical tools for navigating its rich and complex documentary landscape.

Penny Walters: Strategically Marketing Your Genealogy Business. Turning Your Passion into

03:00 PM - 04:00 PM EST

Building a successful genealogy business requires more than skill with records; it calls for thoughtful planning, market awareness, and a clear brand identity. This session explores how to assess readiness and expertise, define a niche, and develop a practical business plan grounded in proven marketing principles such as the 4Ps and AIDA, while using both digital and in-person strategies to reach the right audience. With attention to cultural awareness, international markets, and meaningful specialization—from tailored research plans to DNA analysis—this program outlines realistic, sustainable steps for positioning a genealogy business for long-term success.

Alexandra Kazyrevi?: Vital Records in the Russian Empire and Soviet Union: Systems, Laws,

02:00 PM - 03:00 PM EST

Finding birth, marriage, and death records in the former Russian Empire and Soviet Union is challenging even for professional genealogists because these records are now scattered across many different countries, each with its own archival system and access laws. This presentation provides an overview of birth, marriage, and death registration systems from the Imperial period through the Soviet era to present day, examining how administrative changes and shifting borders impact research strategies. The presentation covers current locations of historical records, access restrictions, and practical strategies for obtaining documents.

Chukwudi Ewa: African Genealogy: An Integral Part of the Future of Genealogical Research

02:00 PM - 03:00 PM EST

This presentation brings awareness to the issues and misconceptions regarding African genealogical research and explores how they affect both African and diaspora researchers worldwide. A central focus is the vital role African genealogical research plays in helping people of African ancestry reconnect with their actual families and ancestral communities in Africa. By addressing these challenges, genealogists can provide meaningful, accurate connections that go beyond generalized ethnicity estimates.

Drawing on experience as a Nigerian family history researcher trained in Western genealogical standards, the session highlights misconceptions, errors, and structural barriers in African ancestry research. It also presents practical and ethical solutions, including expanding African-led DNA reference panels, integrating DNA results with oral and historical sources, reframing ethnicity reporting, promoting education and awareness about genealogical research in Africa, and fostering collaboration between African and diaspora genealogists.

Attendees will gain insight into the complexities of African ancestry research and leave equipped with strategies to conduct more accurate, inclusive, and ethically responsible genealogy, ultimately helping African-descended families reconnect with their roots.
